

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system for determining medical diagnostic equipment comprising: a database system for information regarding the availability of medical diagnostic equipment at various facilities throughout a geographic region; and a user interface connectable to said database system via a network, said user interface including software for accessing said database system via said network determine the availability of specified medical diagnostic equipment at facilities convenient to the user.